The completed bucket is represented by Fig. 2. If the material to be fixed contains so much air that it will not sink in the fixative, and an air pump is not available, the material may be made to sink by stringing on the thread a porcelain or glass button, or better a solid glass bead large enough to cover the mouth of the bucket, and then submerging the bucket in the fixative. But if an air pump can be had it is better to stopper the bucket with a cork which is trimmed flat on two sides so that the air may escape at the top as well as through the cloth bottom. Then the bucket should be placed in a bottle of water, or better, -5 per cent chromic acid, from which the air is then pumped, and after the atmospheric pressure is again turned on the material will immediately sink. The water or chromic acid should then be replaced at once with the intended fixative. If the material is in exceedingly small pieces, and would be likely to escape through the crevices left unstopped by the cork, it will be best to cork the bucket tightly and allow the air to escape only at the bottom. To wash out the fixative the buckets may be stoppered with corks sufficiently large to buoy them up, and then they may be floated in a tumbler of water into which water...
