While ages have been passing by, The seasons and the storms it braves; Stands free beneath the azure sky, Can reach the clouds, and ride the waves. Tis not for show or empty sound, But for protection and for shade: On earth its equal is not found, And yet by human hands tis made. Among the creeping worms of earth Is one, but not of this world s birth; For speed, and for the wrath it bears, No other creeping thing compares. I am not at all sure that this enigma will be found very easy of solution. I am not quite satisfied as to the answer myself. I have, however, rendered Schiller s original almost literally, and with a very likely guess, in my own mind, as to its meaning. The difficulty is in the last line....
