According to legend Rome was founded by descendants of neas who, fleeing from Grecian rapine and the destruction of Troj, established themselves upon the rock-ribbed hills along the Tibers banks. Within the walls erected by Romulus and Remus the victims of oppression and tyrann were welcomed, protected and invested with citizenship. Their power increased with numbers, and in course of time their legions were sent to less progressive nations to instruct them in their arts and sciences, their literature and laws. The history of the civilized world for quite two centuries is the natural and logical amplification of the characteristics of those Trojan exiles. So, in a measure, it may be said the United States had its beginning. A band of refugees from Europe, seeking that freedom of religious thought and...
